FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

The gold market is experiencing that luli who usually follows a period of great excitement and pan day, but there is still a difference of 1/4 a 1/4 between cash and regular sales. The sudden disappearance of much coin from the market as to make deliveries m or less difficult has excited no little surprise, and against a recovery, speculators being apprehensive of immediate return; but of this there is no probabil

The panic in the gold room carried the premium lov than suited the interests of the government or the m cantile and financial community, and only the "short in gold and stocks profited by the sudden far The latter by creating panic—which is at all tim dangerous—endeavored to disseminate the false idea th we are to witness a rapid appreciation of the curren to par, and a speedy resumption of specie paymer after the war. The probabilities, however, are that t gold premium will be higher at intervals for some ti after the cessation of hostilities than it is now. The Southern planters and others, for a long period after the return of peace, will be likely to manifest a strong pref ence for gold over greenbacks, and the demand for spec for remittance to the South will be very considerab The popular impression that we are very near the end war, and that with the latter will come an adjustme of values on or near a specie basis is erroneous, and I dready done a great deal of harm. The condition of t national finances is such that so long as the war la the gold premium must be sustained, in order that t Treasury may raise the money necessary meet current disbursements. We have pursued t path of inflation so long that it is impossible to tu back, unless by the adoption of radical measures, which are no longer probable if possible. It is easy for an reflecting mind to perceive that inferences based up the recent gold panic are delusive, and that we shall have to go on in the present course and abide by its

The volume of the currency is not only undiminished but increasing, and the national debt is undergoing ontinual and heavy augmentation, and so long as no contraction of the currency takes place, and no considerable reduction is made in the public expenditures, the great panic, and the natural tendency of the premium and

The stock market was dull and devoid of speculative feeling at the first board. Eric was % lower than at the cond board yesterday, Hudson River 114, Reading 14, Michigan Central 34, Quicksilver 134. Cumberland was steady. Michigan Southern improved 34, Northwestern 14, Rock Island 34, Fort Wayne 134. Government securities were firm. Five-twenties were & higher; ten-forties %. The "bear" movement in federal bonds has received a check, and there is every prospect of their eedy recovery; and it is important that they should de o, for a decline in these operates unfavorably upon subriptions to the loan now on the market, which is the only resource of the Treasury, apart from the interna disassociated from the gold market the better; for the experience of the last fortnight has shown that its caprices to all subject to their influence. However bad the finan cial policy of the government may have been, the requisite means for carrying on the war must be punctually provided, and the greater the blunders of the past the nore imperative is the necessity for making the best of the existing situation. The whole monetary system of the country is based upon the national credit, and if this

At the open board at one o'clock the market was % a 2 per cent lower, and at the second board the decline in the general list continued, with a strong pressure to sell.
